Security Doors

Secure Critical Information

TAB's Security Door makes it possible to secure critical information without relocating existing records. Installation is quick and easy, so down time is minimal.

No drilling is required for installation, as TAB's Security Doors are simply clipped onto shelving and securely tightened with an allen wrench.

The manufacturing design of the box incorporates a counterbalance spring to facilitate easy lifting and provides a check against rapid closing speeds. For lightweight strength in each security door, this counterbalance design incorporates metal slats which consist of a core of polyurethane foam sandwiched within two aluminum skins.

Safe and secure

The physical components of each TAB security door assembly consist of the side guide rails and a preassembled box which houses the roll of slats. Side guide rails measure 2 1/8 X 7/8", and the box size is generally 6 1/2 x 6 1/2" square, or 7 x 7" square.

Locking is provided by a single push button lock system that is located in the side guide rail. To lock the closed door in place, simply push in the button. After a key is used for unlocking the system, the door will spring upwards to aid in lifting.

TAB's security doors are ideal in meeting the HIPAA privacy requirements for medical record security.
